Grow better, see better, tell better stories...

Roses Old and New

The Workshops

Everyday Roses: Growing garden roses using simple and sustainable methods.

If you tried growing roses in the past but felt it was too much work, or if you never tried growing them all because you heard it was too hard - then this workshop is for you. Garden Roses are really nothing more than flowering shrubs and that is how you will learn to approach them.

From selecting, to planting, to care, to pruning and beyond; you will learn how to incorporate roses into your general landscape with little more effort than other flowering shrubs. The techniques are simple, sustainable and applied with a healthy dose of common sense.

The iPhone Rose Photographer

Without question, the cameras in iPhones, iPads and Android phones these days are miniature wonders that are nearly always within our reach and capable of making magical photographs which can be quickly enhanced, then shared through email, tweets and text messaging, or posted immediately to one's Facebook on the internet.

This wildly accessible new picture paradigm has created a renaissance in visual storytelling, allowing us to capture and share magical moments with our friends and the world.

Having dipped our toes into these playful waters, few of us would ever go back to the world before smartphone cameras. Instead, we want to become more fluent with them, more playful and capable of capturing those unique pictures we see in our mind's eye.

Spend a morning or afternoon with author and garden photographer, David E. Perry as he introduces you to the amazing potential of these new smart phone cameras and works with you in a garden setting shooting an actual photo assignment, adding typography, elegant framing and then posting it to the internet.

Roses Old and New

An All-Day Workshop for Rose Lovers & Gardeners Who Want to Grow Better Flowers & Make Better Pictures of Them

Paul Zimmerman

Paul is the owner of Paul Zimmerman Roses. He has been growing roses for over 20 years - the last 15 organically. His new book "Everyday Roses. How to grow Knockout and other easy-care garden roses" has just been published by Taunton Press. Paul is Coordinator of the Biltmore International Rose Trials, Exclusive Consultant to their Rose Garden and partner in the Biltmore Garden Rose Collection. Paul has spoken and given workshops all over the United States, judged International Rose Trials throughout Europe and writes the Rose Blog for Fine Gardening Magazine. His You Tube Channel "Roses Are Plants, Too" containing rose how-to-videos have been collectively viewed over half a million times. Learn more about Paul: <http://about.me/pzimmerman>

David Perry

David is an inspirational photographer, willing teacher and captivating storyteller who brings the unique insights and skills garnered in thirty plus years of worldwide, on-location photo assignments for major corporations, ad agencies, magazines and book publishers to each new project he encounters. The inquisitive son of a zoologist, David grew up in the field with his dad, trapping and preserving specimens for museums, exploring caves and studying the complex interplay between life forms and their ecologies. He began documenting his impressions of the living world around him with cameras at a very early age. His popular, "A Photographer's Garden Blog", brings thousands of readers together each month through garden tours, thoughtful essays, seasonal imagery and playful photographic assignments. Onstage he is a spirited and slightly irreverent speaker who makes his presentation topics memorable and relevant through clever graphics, breathtaking imagery, playful humor and by never, ever talking down to his audience. In addition to ongoing assignment work for a variety of clients, David's images have graced several magazine covers in the past year, including two for Fine Gardening. He is co-creator of the popular new floral book, "The 50 Mile Bouquet" and is currently hard at work on two other book projects. Learn more about David: <http://about.me/david.perry>

About Pam & James Greenewald and The Nursery

The owners of Angel Gardens, Inc. are Pam and James Greenewald, who have owned and run the business since 1991. Angel Gardens nursery is located 4 miles north of the town of Alachua, Florida which is 10 miles north of Gainesville, home of The University of Florida in North Central Florida (zone 9a). The nursery itself consists of an acre of groundcloth with quarts, 1, 2, and 3 gallon roses propagated organically from cuttings and grown on their own roots. Availability changes daily with each size and variety. Custom rooting is available.

The nursery and gardens are evidence of Pam's "slight obsession" with roses. The property is home to an ancient Timucuan Indian campsite featuring a 10,000+ year old natural springfed nature preserve and pond where one is able to experience a private, unique and rare feeling of "Old Florida". The roses thrive using no chemicals whatsoever for care and 35 years of knowledge of organic methods may be observed throughout the homestead. In addition to the nursery, the ten acres is also home to display rose gardens, butterfly gardens, vegetable garden, huge waterfall and koi pond, a 5 acre lake, and picnic areas.

Please contact us about nursery tours, and other seminars and speaking engagements like this one.

We are excited to have Paul and David present this fun and informative workshop at Angel Gardens and invite you to be a part of this very unique opportunity!
